Taft's Economy Program HAS BEEN CARRIED OUT IN TOTO IN LAST TWO YEARS

Washington, April 13.—According to Republican members of the 61st Congress, President Taft's economy slogan sounded two years ago has been realized to the fullest extent. It would seem, too, that these stand-pat republicans have the statistics, figures and other solid facts upon which to prove their contentions. In the first place "Jim" Taft, familiarly known as the "watch dog of the treasury" says so, and Mr. Taft doesn't usually say anything unless he has the facts and figures at hand to prove his statement. In the next place, statistics show that the appropriations called for by the various cabinet officers, heads of commission, the judiciary, and other independent departments of the government, very nearly equal the estimates. This condition, it is said, has not occurred in years.

Billion Dollar Congress

The last Congress as presided by leading Democrats, like several of its predecessors, was a billion dollar Congress notwithstanding the fact that it only lasted for three months. Its successor, the 62nd Congress, will require all the skill of the Democrats in both the house and the senate to bring the expense of the government for the fiscal year below that mark. If left to Representative J. J. Fitzgerald, of New York, it will undoubtedly be brought about. His followers have already declared that sweeping reforms are to be made in the administration of the government departments and it is supposed that Mr. Fitzgerald and his co-workers will endeavor to cut appropriations far below the estimates made under the Taft policy of retrenchment.

Increased Only $600,000

The appropriations for the last Congress exceeded those of the Sixtieth Congress by only about $600,000 in face of the fact that the country has advanced wonderfully within the past two years and in a period of progression where steady appropriations seem to be necessary to carry on the government's work. In Mr. Taft's words, the "economy of the House bears eloquent testimony to the good faith and successful effort of President Taft in his execution of the law requiring a closer scrutiny of expenditures."

The appropriations under the administration of President Cleveland in the Fifty-third and Fifty-fourth Congresses were $1,871,509,578. Under the Roosevelt administration during the fifty-fifth and sixtieth Congresses a total of $3,812,293,577 was spent, $2,652,169,100 being expended during the Sixtieth Congress under President Taft. Congress appropriated $1,627,137,142 and at the second session, or the Congress first Congress, this was reduced to $1,025,621,106, making a total for the sixty-first Congress of $2,652,623,108.

Cutting Down Estimates

During the last Congress the expenses of maintaining our army and navy were materially cut, $8,000,000 being lopped off the army estimates, and $2,000,000 in the navy. To equalize the situation, however, the sundry civil and other measures that were introduced in the Congress were proportionately swollen. Attempts were made to increase the expenditures of the government by millions of dollars just before the close of the session by numbers of representatives and senators who have seen their last days in the National Congress as members. The efforts, however, were blocked by President Taft and a few senators and representatives close to the administration. President Taft threatened to use the veto, while the members of Congress successfully fought down various measures as they came to the house and senate by filibuster methods.

Mr. Taft, who is the retiring chairman of the house committee on appropriations, in speaking of the subject of reducing the expenditures of the government, recommends, after six years of experience as the head of this committee that all appropriations matters should be consolidated in the hands of one large representative committee. It is pointed out that of the thirteen general supply bills, six are now handled under the rules of the house by the committee on appropriations, and that in those bills there was appropriated during the first regular session of the last Congress $16,000,000 less than the estimates, while the committees having jurisdiction over the remaining seven supply bills appropriated $27,000,000 more than the estimates submitted for consideration. The point is made by Mr. Taft that there should be a justification of the appropriations so that the expenditures of the government could be set in a business like manner.

Representative L. P. Livingston of Georgia, the ranking Democratic member of the house in a statement says that the record of the last session of Congress in appropriating $1,625,551 for 1910 demonstrated that until the Democratic party comes into complete control of the government the billion dollar Congress will continue and that not until then will there be any material reductions in the appropriations that Congress makes from year to year.

The Republicans, however, on the other hand, refute this statement and say that even with the Democrats in control of every branch of the government service, it will be impossible to materially reduce the government's legitimate expenses. It is pointed out that the army and navy expenses have been increased greatly within the last three years and that to reduce expenses would be almost impossible. Representative Livingston, however, says that the country must turn to the Democrats for relief from the burden of militarism, or the people will find themselves face to face with submission to enormous methods of direct taxation. He proposes that Congress undo the legislation fastened on the American people by President Wilson in increasing the army and navy, abolish certain institutions of the government that in his opinion are not necessary and adopt more up-to-date business methods in the departments. In this way, he stated, with careful legislation billion dollar Congress will cease, and the real economy such as the Republicans have been endeavoring to obtain will be brought about.

A fact not generally known is that William H. Taft and Judson Harmon, who may be the rival candidates for president next year, are both members of the faculty of the law department of the University of Cincinnati.

DEMOCRATS TO CELEBRATE

Indianapolis, Ind., April 13.—Many leading lights of Democracy arrived in the Indiana capital to-day to attend the meeting and banquet arranged by the National Democratic League of Clubs. The purpose of the gathering, as set forth in the official call, is to celebrate the Democratic victories of last November and to pave the way for greater victories yet to come. The National Democratic League of Clubs, under whose auspices the gathering takes place, works in various ways for the general good of the party. It is one of the unwritten laws of the organization that presidential candidates are not to be discussed at its meetings. Nevertheless, the league will conclude with a big Jefferson day meeting which began here to-day and banquet to-morrow night, is regarded by the politicians as the opening gun in the Democratic national campaign of 1912, and many are of the opinion that the gathering may have an important influence in the race for the presidential nomination.

The speakers at the banquet will include nearly all of the Democratic leaders whose names have been prominently mentioned in connection with the presidential nomination. William J. Bryan, of Nebraska, Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey and Governor Thomas H. Marshall of Indiana have accepted invitations to speak at the banquet. Governor Judson Harmon of Ohio has been invited and will be on hand if his other engagements permit. Other Democratic leaders of national prominence who will join in sounding the keynotes for the 1912 campaign are Governor Foss of Massachusetts, Governor Burke of North Dakota, former Governor Polk of Missouri, former Governor Peck of Wisconsin, former Governor McCreary of Kentucky, and former Governor McGorkle of West Virginia.

WILL ADDRESS NEGRO ELECTORS

Roosevelt Agrees to Make Ten Minute Speech Before the Colored Residents of Spokane

Spokane, Wash., April 13.—Theodore Roosevelt has been induced to change his mind. The Rev. J. Gordon Macpherson, colored divine, spell-binder and racial booster has received word from Colonel Roosevelt that he will make a 10-minute talk to the colored citizens of Spokane. Thousands of invitations had been sent out and leading colored people from all over the Inland Empire were coming to hear the ex-president talk when word was received that Colonel Roosevelt would require the entire afternoon for rest and would make but one speech, at the state armory, in the evening. The Rev. J. Gordon Macpherson put it squarely upon the ex-president. He told him what they had done, how they had planned and how bitter would be their disappointment if the programme were abandoned. The wired pledges had their effect and the following wire was received: "Under the circumstances I will give speak for 10 minutes to the colored citizens of Spokane." Colonel Roosevelt will speak to the colored citizens at 2:30 o'clock, April 8, and will deliver an address in the state armory in the evening.

London, April 13.—Joseph Marlin has joined in the protest against the wholesale appointment of Tories to the magistracy. He said that since he had been elected to parliament he was unable to get his nominees appointed. "The Duke of Fife, the Tory lordly, to whom I was forced to apply," he said, "believes the bench of London should be exclusively Tory."

CONNECTICUT G. A. R.

Hartford, Conn., April 13.—Grand master-in-chief John E. Gilman of the Grand Army of the Republic, is here as the guest of honor at the annual encampment of the Department of Connecticut. Sixty posts throughout the State were represented at the opening of the encampment to-day. The veterans will devote a large part of to-morrow to exercises in observance of the fiftieth anniversary of the beginning of the war.

COTTON MANUFACTURERS MEET

Boston, Mass., April 13.—The nineteenth annual meeting of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers opened in Huntington Hall, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, to-day for a two days' convention. At the opening session the delegates were welcomed to the Institute of Technology by President MacLaurin, while the city's welcome was extended by Mayor Fitzgerald. During the two days' meeting matters are to be presented on the following subjects: "Executive Management of the Textile Plant and its Relation to the Market," "Sawtooth Island Cotton," "Weaving Shed Roof Construction," "Arbitration on Cancellation of Orders," "The Products in Cotton Manufacturing," "Spinning Machines and Their Relation to Child Labor," "Electric Power Transmission to Cotton Mills," "Gas Producers and Gas Engines for Cotton Mills," "Law of Moisture in Cotton and Wool," "Methods of Cost Finding in Cotton Mills," "Overcoming Weft Yarn," and "Textile Education from a Manufacturing Standpoint."

NEW HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING WILL BE

physical needs of pupils, while there will also be room for expansion.

For Edmonton, the edifice is an innovation in school architecture, an innovation which marks a distinct improvement upon structures erected in the past. Two major studies, the design and the construction, have been given the same importance as the entire work, and the exterior design is such as to add a modern touch to the building. The building is in the Renaissance style, in which all the best in the Renaissance type of architecture is combined with the requirements of a modern educational institution. No less than five hundred pupils will be accommodated, and although at the present time the high school numbers but a hundred pupils, the fact that the school population of the city triples about every three years, would appear to indicate that the time is not very far distant when the capacity even of the commodious building on Churchill avenue will be taxed to the utmost limit.

Of Brick and Stone.

Pacing 144 feet on Second street, the building is of brick, with finishing in brick and stone, extends back a distance of 110 feet, and rises to a height of two stories, surmounted by a bell tower. The building is designed as to add in a degree to the architectural dignity of the structure. The roof of the edifice, except the tower, is of the Mansard type, the tower is a square, and the ventilating towers are the natural outcome of the new arrangement. In the present the tower is twelve feet square, and the copper domes are surmounted by flagpoles which rise to a height above the street level of ninety feet. The external elevation of the building is in brick and stone, the facing being in local pressed brick and Calgary sandstone.

Doric Columns.

Roman Doric columns with entablature over, and carved pediment, grace the two main entrances to the building. Above either entrance is a carved cartouche, and the entrances for the use of the male and female students, are indicated by the words "Boys' Entrance" and "Girls' Entrance" respectively. The main entrances are spacious vestibules, from which access may be obtained to the basement of the school or to the ground floor. A wide room and dark room, and balance room, make up the accommodation of the high school in respect to science teaching. The equipment is such as to afford every student under expert guidance, an insight into the fundamentals of science which may form the basis of a career in the university, or to the student bent on commercial pursuits, provide that broader knowledge and cultivation of scientific habits of thought and action which are essentials of citizenship in a modern state.

Large, Airy Class Room.

Apart from the science department there are on the upper floor four large class rooms, and the school library, 25 by 21 feet.

Danger from fire is entirely eliminated by the design of the high school building. The wide corridors, and the wide entrances and exits (there are four entrances apart from those on Second street), and the wide staircases, would provide speedy egress for as large a crowd of people as could be packed into the building. All the staircases are fireproof. The stair floors are of "Pana," a material which makes a neat and at the same time durable flooring. The staircases are enclosed in brick, and under any conceivable conditions would give safe egress from the building. The main staircase is 6 feet in width, of reinforced concrete, and the stair hall is 20 by 12 feet. All partitions in the building are of brick or masonry.

Two staircases and one on each floor comprise the fire fighting equipment of the school.

Floors of the class rooms, with the exception of those in the basement are in maple, finished in black ash and stained to a dark shade. The basement floors are of cedar. Glass room walls are of plaster, suitably enameled, while the walls of the basement are of brick. The walls of the basement are of brick. The walls of the basement are of brick.

Webster low pressure steam vacuum heating has been adopted, and the vacuum heating is carried out in the most thorough manner, giving a complete change of air in each room once every ten minutes. The fresh air is impelled by fans in the rooms and passes out through the tunnels. Inlet and outlet ducts are installed in each room. A complete installation of vacuum cleaners is provided throughout the building.

The high school building has been erected by the Connell and Spencer Contracting Co., Limited, in accordance with plans prepared by the architect, Roland W. Lines, Heating and Ventilation by the Standard Heating and Plumbing Co., and the electrical wiring has been carried out by the Burnham Frith Co.

"THE TYRANNY OF TEARS."

Owing to a mix-up in bookings of Amateur Dramatic Club will be unable to produce their play, "The Tyranny of Tears" at that theatre on the dates advertised. As this club is desirous of showing its many patrons the play which the Edmonton Amateurs are taking to Winnipeg, it is respectfully requested that the trophy awarded by the governor-general, they have arranged to take the Lyceum Theatre for the original dates, viz., Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, 17, 18, 19, with a matinee on Easter Monday. This box office will be open on Wednesday, April 12 at the Lyceum Theatre.

AT THE EMPIRE.

"The Queen of the Moulin Rouge," the title of the musical drama which set Broadway aflame with enthusiasm and stirred the critics of the city, is rather a misnomer. So much has been written about it that further words are almost superfluous. It is a popular, misapprehension, doubtless caused by its suggestive title, will be worth while. That it is a "chic, bizarre and inviting" is frankly admitted. That it has dash, harmless transient, effervescence, is cordially granted. That it is not rising to a moral tone or offensive to the modest eyes and ears, is vouchsafed by Samuel E. Clark, under whose direction it appears at the Empire Theatre on Monday night. The most defensible thing about "The Queen of the Moulin Rouge" is the abundance of some of its prettiest and vivacious dancing. The elaborate costumes, the splendid scenery, the notable features, the production is elaborate and the presentation is unusually large, requiring a special train of five cars for transportation.

MOVEMENT STARTED TO DEMAND RAILWAY TO NORTH COUNTRY.

taken place for some time. Mr. Vielle, in the year and a half, has created himself extensively in the McMuray asphalt and oil deposits, and is today one of the biggest promoters of the north country.

His address last night, though uttered in a broken English, was listened to with deepest interest and greatly applauded. A splendid dinner was served up to those present, although the refusal of the Premier to grant a permit for the use of wine, made it necessary to drink the toasts in pure Saskatchewan. The refusal of the permit to this particular banquet, when others had been granted, created no little comment.

Acting Mayor Melvin presided, and the speakers included Mr. Vielle, Mr. Evans, Mr. Cole, Dr. Robertson, formerly of the geological survey, President Morgan of the Board of Trade, and Mr. Ald. Grindley, Mr. Bladell and others.

"It is a great pleasure to me to see so many of the influential men of Edmonton and Strathcona here to-night," said Mr. Vielle, addressing his guests. "My greatest pleasure is, however, to welcome you as my guests, and my first wish is that this evening will be enjoyed by you all."

Mr. Vielle then proceeded to outline his story of the resources of the McMuray district as he had explored them. He said a railway to McMuray would tap the richest mineral country in Canada. The bed of asphalt he had explored at that point was 20 feet deep, and extended for an area of from 5 to 9 square miles. On the two streams which joined at McMuray, the Athabasca and the Clearwater, there were no agricultural lands tributary to it. It was involved in dog farm from Lac la Poudre to McMuray, and it is the "bed of asphalt."

"Private corporations," he said, "had been limited north of Battleford, and the C.N. is preparing to build a line into McMuray from that direction. Edmonton cannot afford to let the road go in that way. It would ruin the city of the great traffic from the north."

"A railway to McMuray would tap 3,000 miles of waterways. It would not only tap the timber, the minerals, but one of the greatest fisheries in the world. Great Slave Lake is 350 miles in length, and Lake Athabasca 75 miles, and both are full of the best fish."

Mr. Vielle went on to explain that the formation at McMuray was such as to lead to the belief that oil existed in great quantities. The formation was of Devonian limestone, 175 feet deep. He said there had never been the right test made. "But provided it do not fall into the Grand Rapids this summer, I will take the machinery up there to make the right kind of test."

Mr. Vielle went on to say that he had tried to get New Yorkers interested in the north country, and when they asked him how many Edmonton people he had on his stock books, he could tell them nothing except that Edmonton people were all for rail estate.

He said it would be no trouble to get capital interested in the north country of a road, once the natural resources were proved. He announced that he was preparing to take three New York capitalists up to McMuray this summer to look over the proposition. He went on to say that he had staked claims and organized a company and he hoped that Edmonton people would get in on the ground floor with the stock, and not let outsiders come in to stow them what they had.

A. F. Ewing pointed out that the north country was the life of Edmonton and of the province. He said that a railway was a necessary adjunct to the development of the mineral wealth. He pointed out that the question which build a road where there were no people. One reason was that all the first homestead land adjacent to present railways had been taken up. Then there was no other place in the province where mineral resources existed to such an extent. "If this present generation is going to reap any of the rewards of development of that country, we must start now. It is our duty as citizens to do all we can to forward this development." J. L. Cole, M.P.P., gave it as his belief that McMuray would be the future manufacturing town of the province. He pointed out that geological reports had shown the asphalt deposits to extend over a distance of 700 miles west from McMuray district. He also believed that a glass manufacturing would be one of the future industries of the north country, for the material necessary was there. Mr. Cole pointed out that the range of settlement was extended as far northward as the shores of Great Slave Lake. There had been proved, buffalo had lived, and where buffalo lived, cattle could live, and where cattle could live, human beings could find a home. Frank B. Smith, who had explored the north country on behalf of the Dominion government, was unable to be present, but sent a written report which was read by the chairman. In the report Mr. Smith gave detailed figures to show the value of the asphalt deposits at McMuray, and the strong indications of oil in the same district. Dr. Robertson, who also has visited the Athabasca country, gave further assurance of the value of the minerals, and emphasized the great need of a railway. He made the announcement that he was able to promise that a road would be a gold rush very shortly to the north shores of Lake Athabasca, as valuable deposits of gold had recently been discovered. Parties were even now up there carrying on development.

Am. J. D. Hyndman said that they were not present to criticize the government for its failure to build a road into the north, but he believed the government should be the one to build the road, and should do it at once. He would like to see a strong league formed to push development of the north. P. M. Morgan said it was, as north, good strong cream filled was gotten together to go down to the government one thing Edmonton needed was a road into the north. St. Claire Blacketter said his sentiments in a brisk speech.

president of the University, will mark the inauguration of a new provincial course of studies for high schools. Pupils, as well as the subjects of general culture also will be included in the course which may extend over a period of two years. A more or less technical training of commercial usefulness will be given, and it is probable that the course will extend into a third year, in which the commercial side of economic science and art will be a subject of instruction.

Household Science. For girl students, the well-equipped household science department will be of great utility. Graduating classes from the public schools will attend the high school for instruction in this subject, while high school girls in the first and possibly in the second year will receive such instruction.

Whether the manual training of the public school be continued in the high school is a question upon which the school board have not as yet reached a decision. This subject, and that of the technical training of the students in respect to which, Mr. McGill has made special enquiry during his recent tour of educational institutions of the west, and a report dealing with the question in a comprehensive manner will be submitted to the school board in the near future.

One-third of the enrollment of the high school has in the past been represented by students from other than Edmonton homes. The education these pupils have received here has been very good, and it is altogether probable that as the years pass by a still larger proportion of the student body will come from districts outside of the city boundaries.

Modern in Every Respect. That the home of secondary education in Edmonton there is no more carefully designed nor better equipped school building west of Winnipeg or on the west side of the Pacific is a fact. Every improvement which the progress of modern school architecture has evolved has been adapted to requirements of the building which will house an institution imparting not only the theoretical knowledge which in the days of a bygone ideal of pedagogy was considered adequate life equipment for students, and also providing for practical training in experimental science.

The High School has a location at the centre of population of the Edmonton of the future. Within a block of the street car line, it is so situated that the students may take full advantage of the service, while the building is conveniently removed from the most traffic to ensure against the distractions which proximity to a busy thoroughfare creates.

The site includes two full blocks, each five hundred feet long and three hundred and twenty feet wide, together with the street between them. The eight acres of school grounds will, it is anticipated, prove adequate to the corridor passes around three sides of basement, affording entrance to the sewing room, kitchen and domestic science room, and to the bathroom, which is closed by the corridor, in the centre of the basement, is the gymnasium. This room is fifty by thirty feet, the surface dimensions, and rises to a height of eighteen feet. It is the first properly equipped gymnasium to be provided in a school building in Edmonton. All the necessary apparatus for physical culture and recreational sports as may be found in the most up to date of institutions of this kind, will be procured for the equipment of this room. The gymnasium is laid out on either side lead to the dressing rooms for boys and girls, and to the instructor's room. Each room is provided with a separate locker, and a lock and key. At one end of the gymnasium is a gallery of recreational games, and at the other end is a gallery of modern youth. "A sound mind in a sound body" is the motto of the physical education of the twentieth century. In the Edmonton High School, physical training will form an important part of the education, alike of male and female students. Designed for the training of the modern housewife is the course in Household Science to be provided in another large room in the basement. Here also will be the sewing room, dining room and kitchen. Toilet rooms, heating apparatus and the fan room make up the remainder of this floor.

Commercial Rooms. Upon the ground floor are three main corridors, one eight feet and the other two twelve feet in width, from which access is obtained to the various rooms. Opening off the main corridor at the front of the building is the principal room, and a reception room 20 by 17 feet. Another provision has been made on this floor for the equipment necessary to a training in modern commercial essentials. In addition to the assembly room, 25 by 32 feet, there are rooms for stenography and typewriting, while there are five other class rooms, each 20 by 17 feet. A large room, 25 by 32 feet, is provided for the general work of the high school.

On the ground floor also is the auditorium, a spacious assembly hall, 50 by 40 feet, which rises to the full height of the building. The hall will prove excellent for the purpose of school lectures, of concerts, and of the various other features of the social side of school life. It is equipped with a stage and retiring rooms and with teachers' rooms. At the rear of the hall is a gallery providing seating accommodation for a considerable number of people.

A fully equipped science department is established on the upper floor, consisting of a lecture laboratory, 32 feet square, a lecture room 27 by 25 feet, physical laboratory 25 by 30 feet, a preparation

The Rockefeller Millions Were MADE IN OIL

THAT Great Group of rich men known as "The Pittsburgh Millionaires" made their gigantic fortunes in the oil fields of Pennsylvania.

California has in storage today, more value in oil than the total aggregate value of the wheat crop of the North American continent and a whole new group of millionaires is being made by the California Oil Fields.

So frequent and so extensive have been the fortunes made in oil that even the paragraphs have accepted as a stock phrase the understanding that the new-rich come always from the oil fields.

Alberta Oil Fields Greatest of All

If you have studied the reports of the Geological Department you are conversant with the fact that Alberta has all the surface showings of a great oil field in the Athabasca River country. Fraser, Dawson, Tyrrell and all the other experts who have made an examination of the country are unanimous in their conclusions that a great oil district will certainly be developed in the neighborhood of Fort McMurray.

The Edmonton and Fort McMurray Oil & Asphalt Co.

holds 1920 acres in the heart of what is recognised to be the best part of the Fort McMurray District. The Company is a local company, incorporated in Edmonton. Its Directors are men whose names alone are a guarantee that the public will get a square deal. It is in a position to develop its property and it makes no speculative or bargain-counter appeal for subscription—but offers stock for sale at par as an investment.

Asphalt Resources Alone Worth the Purchase Price

The Company holds asphalt resources which are alone worth the purchase price of the stock and furnish the stockholders security for their investment, and the purchaser gets all the possibilities of the oil fields as well. It only requires railway development to make it possible to realize on this investment.

The Time to Invest in McMurray Oil is Now

The Edmonton and Fort McMurray Oil and Asphalt Company is incorporated for Half-a-Million. It offers $50,000 worth of Stock at par, the money to be used solely for development. The Directors are Robert Ritchie, President, John W. Walter, Vice-President, A. E. May, Secretary-Treasurer.

FARMERS WOULD GAIN VERY LITTLE

Reciprocity Will Give Trusts Strong Foothold in Canada, Says James Herron.

The picture of the Canadian farmer and producer in the grip of the United States trusts, with the trusts controlling the products, as a result of reciprocity between Canada and the States, as now proposed, is the one drawn by James Herron, a well-known farmer and politician from Ottawa, who is a visitor to the city today.

Mr. Herron reached the city last evening over the Grand Trunk Pacific in company with R. C. W. Lett, colonization agent of the railway company, and is a guest at the Royal George.

Mr. Herron is a brother of Major Herron, well-known in Toronto. He has been for years an eminent Conservative politician in his district, and has recently come out very strong in opposition to the reciprocity pact.

Mr. Herron cannot see any possible reason for changing the present conditions of things, and giving United States reciprocity. He believes that the opening of the market in the States to the Canadian cattle ranchers, and producers, will give the desired opening for the trusts to work in. He believes they will soon have a corner on cattle and other products. Markets in Chicago are very uncertain, and, because of the control of the trusts, and these trusts would very soon overcome a few ranchers in Western Canada.

He believes too, that the farmers will gain very little, by a reduction of the tariff on agricultural implements. "In the States to-day, labor organizations are demanding more wages and shorter hours, if this is given, up will go the price of the article produced. The result will be that we will be paying higher for our machinery instead of getting a lower price."

"Canada and the Canadian people are making great progress now. Why must we be contented with this. Canada has everything it needs. It has three transcontinental railways it has timber, and other resources. Why should we let the United States manufacturer come in and take our raw material over there, and send us back the manufactured article, when we can manufacture it as well here."

ATTORNEY FOR GREAT WATERWAYS SPOILS DEFENCE.

The Legislature. It is contended that the act passed at the special session last fall, for the purpose of securing control of the Waterways bonds, cannot have the effect of repealing any of the acts by which the companies were given power, and that the trusts, adhering to the monies remained unaffected. The Canada West Construction Co., organized under the Dominion Statute, is declared to be a company beyond the authority of the Alberta Legislature, and for this reason, it is contended, Premier Sifton's bill is not binding upon the company.

The act whereby the funds of the railway were declared a part of the general revenue fund of the province is further declared to be ineffective for the purposes of the statement of claim, since it "can have no binding effect in law upon any of the defendants or upon the Standard Trusts Co., the trustee for the bondholders, or upon the purchasers of the bonds, the firm of J. P. Morgan and Co., of the City of London, England, or upon the said fund of $6,000,000, which fund is not and was not at the time of the passing of the said act, in fact or in law, situated in the said Province of Alberta."

Finally, the act by which the Waterways funds were declared to be transferred to the general revenue fund of Alberta is held by Mr. Ford to have been ultra vires.

ACTION DISMISSED.

John Renard, a workman who had been engaged by A. R. Harvey to work in the Shierley construction camp, paid the usual dollar fee, but found no work provided for him when he got out to the camp, charged Harvey in the police court this morning with obtaining money under false pretenses. The case was dismissed by Magistrate Gowan.

Mrs. Herbert Baker, 1315 Peace ave. will not receive again this season.

W. Kehoe, of Edmonton, has returned from a trip to the east, and will shortly open a greasy furnishings store at Athabasca Landing.

CHARGED WITH FORGERY.

Wm. McKinnon, arrested in Winnipeg last week on six charges of forgery, will come up for preliminary trial in the police court this afternoon. McKinnon was formerly employed on the grade west of Edison, and is alleged to have forged the signature of Norman McKay to a number of cheques made out in favor of the latter, the aggregate amount of the cheques was $200. The cheques were drawn on the bank of Ottawa, and were cashed by McKinnon, it is alleged, at the Edmonton branch.

GREAT AUTO TRIP IN SUNNY OLD ALBERTA

Under the signature of "Jackson," the Calgary Herald publishes the following interesting tale of an auto trip:

Last winter, when the snow was so deep that Colonel Walker could not take his horses out to his farm, I experienced the most sensational trip I have ever had in Alberta.

We all got into my auto at the McLaughlin-Buck garage, and we made up our minds that we would cover the distance or die in the attempt. We met at the Alberta hotel, and in the party were: Colonel Walker and Willie Dodd of Calgary, William Pendlin of Medicine Hat, and myself driving the auto. All these boys remember the trip.

Colonel Walker told me that he had made attempts to get his horses out to his farm, and I was at once interested. I said, "I will carry you fellows out to the farm, even if the snow is 4 feet deep," and the colonel said, "You're on," so we took the trip. We met at the Alberta, and it was the day that the big storm was on in Calgary. The snow had drifted up the roads to the extent of nearly four feet, and I am letting down the depth when I say that. The four that I have mentioned above crowded into the McLaughlin-Buck, and I said, "You old machine, you will have to cover the ground, or we will all be left perched upon a snow-drift, and the name of the car will go down."

Come to the Hill.

Well, we started. Colonel Walker was in the first seat with me; the others were in the rear seat. We traveled at the rate of 20 miles an hour until somebody said, "There is the hill. What in—will we do."

I felt that the hill was an awful climb under the conditions. Here we were, with three feet of snow on the road, and with this hill to climb. Have you been out to Colonel Walker's ranch? Have you seen the high hill? It's a corker. You have seen it in the summer time, when there was no snow on it. Well, what would it look like if there were four feet of snow, covering not only the summit, but all the way down. Colonel Walker said, "You can't make it," but I said, "Here goes. And what a ride! I turned on all speed, and we went through that snow we went. Everybody hung on to the handles, and I will leave it to anyone in the car that at the time we ploughed through three feet of snow. At times Willie Dodd was almost covered over, and the colonel said, "Easy-up, old man, ease up."

It was an awful drive. I was sorry when we first started, that I ever suggested such a drive. Imagine plowing through the snow, hardly able to breathe, and all hanging to the sides, fearing that we would upset, or that something else of a disastrous nature would happen. At one time the colonel leaned over to me and said, "You will never make it," but I grunted my teeth and said, "We will get there, or the car bursts," and we went ahead at the rate of 20 miles an hour. The snow piled up on either side like a snow-pile plowing through a drift in the Rockies. The occupants of the car were hanging on to the sides with a grip for dear life, and I went to it for all the car was worth.

Get There All Right.

We started at the bottom of the hill—you know the hill—and I had a start Willie Dodd said, "Oh, G—T" but I still pushed her ahead. We were only half way up, and I thought, "We are stuck," but we were not, and of course we got there.

Well, I am asked to tell of the live-liest run I have had in Alberta. This was it. Ask them about it. We went through drifts three feet deep, and at one time the snow piled up in front of us, and, although I would not swear to its depth, I am sure that the snow was eight feet deep. "Weigh our breaths," and Walker almost took a header over the front of the car. The others in the back hung on for dear life, and I thought all was gone. We had run into a stone wall that was covered with snow. But we got back.

with a shot from the car like that from a rifle. We set ourselves in the car and over the road we went—let never again!

We reached the top—the top that we could see from far below. We sighted, and then we looked back, and Pendlin said that he never went through such an adventure. Colonel Walker was in his element, and I was with him. "Where is your farmer?" I asked "Show me to it!"

Not a Fairy Tale.

Now, we are telling no fairy tale here. We want to show the people what can be accomplished in Alberta. Colonel Walker pointed to a farm off in the distance, and, believe me, the road was the limit. The snow was 4 feet deep on the level, and it was placed in such a position that the drift was to the greatest extent, and at the farm gate it was only 5 feet deep. I said that we had better go over the prairie and enter the farm from a fence to what I thought was the west. He said, "All right," and I turned the car's course in that direction and we started.

Down the line we went, and the old car ploughed through the drifts like a C. P. R. double side-shift, showing the snow off on each side for six feet. Finally I said to the colonel, "Show us where we can get an entrance down there," and he pointed to a spot away off in the distance, and I turned the car for the point.

Off we went and over the hills, covered with snow, we sped. We increased our speed, and bounce after bounce we experienced in the merry ride. All at once we struck something, and Colonel Walker almost took a header over the front of the car. The others in the back hung on for dear life, and I thought all was gone. We had run into a stone wall that was covered with snow. But we got back.

The whist players are full of serious purpose, and the programme does not contemplate much sight-seeing for even the out-of-town members of the league. It calls for whist playing morning, afternoon and night. Every effort is being made to make the tournament the most successful of its kind ever held in Canada.

CANADIAN BOXING CHAMPIONSHIPS

Toronto, Ont., April 12.—With the preliminary promise of being the most successful events of the kind ever pulled off in the Dominion, the amateur boxing championships of Canada begin in the Mutual Sport Rink to-night, to continue over to-morrow and Saturday. All arrangements for the tournament have been completed under the direction of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada. The foremost amateur boxers of nearly all sections of Canada are included among the entrants. The classes are 105 pounds, 125 pounds, 135 pounds, 145 pounds, 158 pounds, and heavyweight.

Off we went and over the hills, covered with snow, we sped. We increased our speed, and bounce after bounce we experienced in the merry ride. All at once we struck something, and Colonel Walker almost took a header over the front of the car. The others in the back hung on for dear life, and I thought all was gone. We had run into a stone wall that was covered with snow. But we got back.

CANADIAN SWIMMING CHAMPIONSHIP

Montreal, April 12.—The speediest swimmers of the Dominion are entered in the Canadian swimming championship, which are scheduled for decision tonight and tomorrow night in the tank of the Montreal Athletic Association. The programme provides for the following events: 40 yards, 100 yards, 140 yards, diving, and 160 yard relay race for teams of four men each.

SOUTHERN TRIP FOR CRIMSON

Cambridge, Mass., April 12.—The Harvard University track team, consisting of twenty men, together with coaches, managers and trainers, left today for an extensive trip through the South. The first few days will be spent in Baltimore, where the team will use the Johns Hopkins field for training purposes. The principal event of the trip will be a dual meet with the Naval Academy at Annapolis one week from to-morrow.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell has given up tragic roles for the present, to display her versatility in comedy. It is reported that she will play in the role of Patricia, by Rudolph Bessier, the author of "Don."

WAS NEVER CHAMPION.

A Subscriber—James E. Britz was never a three-weight champion of the world. Even in Fresno, where he bails from, they used to call him the "salmon pink" champion, to distinguish him from Joe Janis, the real champion. Contrary to the general impression, Joe Janis and not Pat Nelson was the lightweight champion when they met at Oakland, though Nelson boxed most of the money. This was the champion, but he was in disgrace on account of a number of shady deals he had taken part in, and he had to be satisfied with what was offered him in the way of matches. Nelson did not become champion until after he had washed hands.

Edmund Broese is to star next season under the direction and management of Joseph Weber, in a play entitled "The Decision," written by a Philadelphia minister.

Hilda Keenan, the daughter of Frank Keenan, is soon to appear in vaudeville in a sketch entitled "Sarah." It is to be produced under the father's personal direction.

Fanny Mora, the younger sister of Helene Mora, is shortly to present an act in vaudeville, similar to that of her sister's. She is said to have the same unusual contralto voice.

Upshold the Scenes," Margaret May's new play, will open in Rochester, N.Y., next Monday. Bertram Harrison is making the production. In the cast will be Edna Baker, Margaret McWade, Ray Fuller, William Abington and others.

ALASKAN ESKIMOS ARE BEING PLACED IN CLASS WITH WHITE WORKMEN

Washington, April 13.—Now that the government has practically put the American Indian upon a self-supporting basis, attention has been directed to the Eskimos and Indians of Alaska. Through the Bureau of Education, of the Department of Interior, special schools, technical and academic, have been provided in a number of places in Alaska, and this system of education has been extended within the past two years to nearly every centre of population.

According to W. T. Lopp, head of the Alaska school and reindier service, the present need of the natives of Alaska, is an industrial education that will fit them to become self-supporting, and, in the end, to compete with the white men who have invaded the country. The Bureau, in educating the natives through the schools, is teaching them a rudimentary knowledge of English, reading, writing and kindred subjects. Later, technical schools are to be added to the system of education.

Twenty years ago the Alaskan natives were able to support themselves by their primitive methods. Since the invasion of the white man, however, every year has found the natives more helpless. Today they must be skilled in modern commercialism, in order to enjoy to the fullest the opportunities that the country affords, and to take their place with the white man industrially. The Alaskan Indian must put away his primitive tools and customs and adopt up-to-date and modern implements of civilization. This is the primary aim of the Bureau of Education.

The natives are being taught the use of modern implements of industry, hygiene, sanitation and modern cooking. Business in its active aspects is also taught. As a result of this system of education native stores and various forms of commercial industries have been opened and are conducted by natives. In a number of cases, the Bureau of Education has assisted the natives in these enterprises, and later has been repaid. Already there are number of stores in Alaska run by natives, schooners and modern sailing boats are owned by a considerable number, native homes rank among the most pretentious there, while not a few natives are rated in the capitalist class.

Carpentry is taught in the various schools and the handicraft of the natives is seen in nearly every seaport town. At Cape Prince of Wales and Unalakleet the natives own their own mine, being engaged in regular trade at Cape Prince of Wales. These boats were built without the assistance of white men, and are capable of carrying about 30 tons.

The reindier is the principal source of food to the natives. These animals furnish the native with everything he requires. Reindeers were introduced into Alaska by the government in 1829, when a herd of about 170 were landed at Port Clarence from Siberia. In eleven years following 1,200 more were imported. Today there are 27,000 reindeer in Alaska. The animals were distributed among the natives by the government.

All natives desiring to own herds of their own must serve an apprenticeship of four years, their pay being in reindeer. The first year they receive six, the second eight, and the last two years of their service ten each year. In this way, by the time their four years' apprenticeship has expired, they have a herd of twenty-four reindeer, or more, and become self-supporting. The method is an entire success. Each apprentice has to promise to take on apprentices as his herd increases.

Interesting experiments are being conducted in connection with the reindeer. It has been found that the moss upon which the deer feeds is not particularly nourishing, and, in fact, is limited. The experiments conducted so far have been to teach the animals to eat other food. In case of the reindeer, substitution of new kinds of food for the moss was impracticable, but the reindeer diet, it is claimed, will eat anything.

The natives are good fishermen, even the women sharing this ability with the men. The up-to-date methods of catching fish by nets and traps were eagerly adopted, and in some places large businesses have developed. In Southern Alaska there are a number of canneries, and the natives get from $2 to $3 a day working at canning salmon. Catching fish for those canneries is also another source of income.

In every large settlement government schools of instruction is felt assisted the natives in these enterprises, and later has been repaid.

Even the most northerly point in Alaska, Point Barrow, has felt the touch of civilization. Here is located a school house, the farthest north one in the world. From this point south the government hopes to erect eight new modern schools within the next fifteen months. They will be built on the coast line.

Besides educating the native and helping him to better his condition by introducing reindeer in his own government keeps him informed as to the price of whalebone, and other of the natural products of the country. A four years ago trading vessels along the Alaska coast could get all the whalebone they wanted to exchange for trading trinkets. Later when money value was set, traders paid about 50 cents a pound for the bone. Today through government supervision whalebone brings from $3 to $5 a pound. This has opened a very lucrative trade to the native. A cask usually weighs from 2,000 to 2,500 pounds. Some natives are lucky enough to kill two and sometimes three a season. At $3 a pound it can easily be seen what source of income the native derives.

Soil has been throughout the entire Alaskan country. The natives and government land are gradually being brought up to the standard of civilization and within the next decade or two will be entering into the commercial life of Alaska in sharp competition with the white man.

No special observance of the anniversary was being held here, but later in the summer Astoria will celebrate the centennial with a week of festivities.

WANT ARKANSAS RIVER KEPT PURE.

Canon City, Colo., April 13.—The famous Arkansas river clarification case was called for trial to-day in the district court. The City of Pueblo is the principal complainant in the case and the defendant is the Lake Placer, limited. The complainants seek an injunction to restrain the mining company from destroying the natural purity of the waters of the Arkansas river by washing into them any mineral or vegetable matter as a result of its placer mining operations in the vicinity of Cache Creek.

TO ANSWER TO GRAVE CHARGE.

Washington, D.C., April 13.—The Hon. J. B. McPherson, who is charged with an attempt to attack Miss Gentry in a Pullman sleeping car the night of Jan. 27, was called for trial to-day, filed his plea of not guilty to the charge of sexual assault, and was returned to his home from Earlham College, where he is a travelling salesman of Washington, D.C. He was arrested in Dubuque and returned here for trial.

Nightly Death Toll.

"They die there," said Mr. Liu, "almost every night. Some times one or two, sometimes if the night has been bitter cold, many more, frozen or starved to death."

"Oh, God pity them, these dwellers in 'The City of Dreadful Night.' For hundreds, yes, hundreds of thousands, they are starving and dying before their eyes, shivering, emaciated and, piteously folded hands."

Rev. W. Bortwick writes to the relief committee at Shanghai as follows: "Some time ago I thought I was telling you a pitiful story when I told you of people living on wheat bran. But as the days go by and as I know more of the needs, the story becomes far more pitiful. Some homes are to be seen where the mother and her children, as they are, are in the streets, or in a horse stable for their food. But that is not all. I have seen the bodies of simply dry, weak, emaciated, and, as I have said, starved, now that can be considered as human food I do not know and do not attempt to explain to you, but that is what is done. I only know that many of these poor sufferers are but thin skeletons of what they were, beyond me to give you any description of what is all around us. Human beings, heartbroken and all but naked on freezing cold days, and children on the streets most pitifully crying out 'I am hungry, I am hungry, I am hungry.' I wish one must see and hear and then, whatever his feelings are of them, he must turn a deaf ear to their pitiful pleadings, for as yet the amount that is within reach of us who are trying to render assistance is but as a drop

"THE CITY OF DREADFUL NIGHT"

Pitiful Narratives of Suffering of the Famine-Stricken Chinese.

From Puchou, in Anhui, where hundreds of thousands are starving and dying, and missionaries and others distributing relief, while thousands fight for pity to keep them alive for a day, come harrowing details of the Chinese famine conditions. A sketch written by Mrs. J. B. Cochran, wife of a medical missionary engaged there which she calls "The City of Dreadful Night," is as follows:

"The Temple of the God, right under our windows, a slave's throw from our veranda, raises its ragged walls and pinnacles, curved roofs with as staunch a face to the world as any has shown for all these long centuries past; and the old City God himself sits stolidly on his throne and smiles calmly and benignly down, unmoved though his people, hundreds of thousands, are starving and dying before his face, and his temple has become a den of thieves and robbers. In that old temple, homeless and starving—professional beggars with their masses of rags, and conventional crack-brained and staff; people from the city whose homes have been chopped up and sold for kindling wood, and no number of decent country people with their little waifing children, who have wandered in, in a forlorn hope, rather than sit upon their starvation and die; parents who have seen their children one by one die, and the children left behind, the parents, having given them their last bite, staggered and fell—they are all there and the old old smiles benignly down on all these—his children."

Abandon Hope
"A few nights ago a family—there were five left—gave up the struggle, and in one corner of this 'City of Dreadful Night,' the father first strangled his three children and then he and his mother hanged themselves. Strange, isn't it for the City God to smile upon when the sun struggled in and showed it the next morning?"

"Two days ago kind Mr. Liu, going about with bread, said to Mr. Chen, 'We will wait till about 10 o'clock in the morning; then all who are able will have crawled out to beg.' At 10 o'clock, when they entered the temple they found 28 men, women and little children too weak to move, lying prostrate before, before the pious face of their God; parents, Christians, sick with pity, gave them food; but when they again came next morning, six, too far gone to take the food, had died. The next morning, these two good men take out what they can all give up, and all who are left are foreigners and marked men dare not give a cent for fear of mobs) and distribute it in coin and food to the who are, as Mr. Liu says, 'about to die.'"

"As these two Christians enter the temple, the gaunt, wretched figures rise up from their seats, and snatch like crazy things for the food they are trying to give out. Once Mr. Liu held out a bit of bean-cake to a man who stood away from the wall, but the crowd cried out, 'Too late,' as the man, his hand still outstretched, staggered and fell dead."

"They die there," said Mr. Liu, "almost every night. Some times one or two, sometimes if the night has been bitter cold, many more, frozen or starved to death."

"Oh, God pity them, these dwellers in 'The City of Dreadful Night.' For hundreds, yes, hundreds of thousands, they are starving and dying before their eyes, shivering, emaciated and, piteously folded hands."

Rev. W. Bortwick writes to the relief committee at Shanghai as follows: "Some time ago I thought I was telling you a pitiful story when I told you of people living on wheat bran. Some homes are to be seen where the mother and her children, as they are, are in the streets, or in a horse stable for their food. But that is not all. I wish one must see and hear and then, whatever his feelings are of them, he must turn a deaf ear to their pitiful pleadings, for as yet the amount that is within reach of us who are trying to render assistance is but as a drop in the bucket. One poor woman was almost starved and having nothing for her child to throw it away, and then started to the place where food was being given out, hoping to receive something to keep life for her aged mother, she was one of the multitudes that got nothing and when she returned to her home at night it was to learn that her mother had hung herself to get rid of the starving hunger."

Congressman Cordell Hall of Tennessee, enlisted in the volunteer army as a private at the beginning of the Spanish war and emerged as a captain. He is known as one of the quiet, earnest workers on the Democratic side of the House. Though seldom heard in debate on the floor, he is nevertheless strong in the councils of the party.
